Knock the Socks Off Your Clients: Rendering and Presentation Techniques

Clients expect to be wowed when it comes to design presentations. Knocking their socks off is imperative! Great renderings and presentations can help set the right expectations up-front and prevent issues later. You can easily offer multiple design options and make it easier for clients to make smart decisions. Great presentations can convince clients to work with you as a designer and help them understand their future spaces. In this session, learn best practices in the most advanced design, rendering and presentation techniques used by successful designers. From design technology, to digital output, to Virtual Reality experiences...we'll learn a lot and have some fun too!
